

Trainings Produce Big Benefits in the Workplace

Thank you for your interest as an employer in ChoiceCenter Leadership University's Personal Development and Leadership trainings. Our students find that incorporating experiential learning into their lives dramatically increases their overall performance and achievement by creating a heightened sense of fulfillment and satisfaction in all they do. That's because ChoiceCenter trainings and personal coaching programs support participants in creating extraordinary results in all areas by teaching students how to integrate what they learn from the workshops into their personal and professional lives.

ChoiceCenter's trainings are designed to significantly and measurably enhance on-the-job performance. We recommend having a discussion with your employee prior to them entering the training to identify specific and measureable goals you want them to achieve as an outcome of the training and working with a personal coach for 100 days. They will explore how they make decisions, perform as a leader and team player, and experience what it is like for others to be in relationship with them.
